Electronic marketing and online catalogues.

Speed, immediacy and world wide coverage make electronic communication a necessity for any company. They are easily updated, targeted by design and capable of satisfying the immediate needs of many combinations of search criteria.

Compared with print or exhibition stands websites can be very cost effective. They can react quickly to new client needs and the traffic can be monitored, assessed and evaluated to inform future campaigns or promotions.

Printed materials and emails that promote the web address will complete the circle of publicity that informs potential clients of the web presence.

Airborne design websites and electronic communications to market products and services.

Our Victorian geometric tile collection has been created with versatility in mind. They can recreate a genuine period look, comply with conservation needs, modernise an old design, or develop a pattern of your own choice.

They come in a variety of shapes and sizes and the majority are available in twenty-five colours. Colour samples can viewed at our showroom. The tiles are frost resistant and suitable for both interior and exterior use.
